

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5

The invention relates to a method for supporting a data exchange between terminal equipment and a mobile communication network via a mobile terminal. The method comprises at the mobile terminal receiving from the 10 terminal equipment a request to establish a connection to the mobile communication network for exchanging data and forwarding this request to the mobile communication network. The method further comprises in case a failure occurs concerning the requested connection and an
15 indication of a cause of the failure is received at the mobile terminal from the mobile communication network, forwarding the indication to the terminal equipment. The invention relates equally to a corresponding mobile terminal, to a corresponding terminal equipment, to a
20 corresponding system and to a corresponding software program product.

25